KEY FEATURES

Multidisciplinary approach: environmental management requires interactions between scientific disciplines. Our courses cover a large scope: life, earth, soil and agricultural sciences.

Guest lectures: water issues are different across countries. To give students a wider overview of management practices, 1/3 of the courses are taught by invited faculty from partner universities.

Experiential learning: 1/5 of classes are dedicated to field observation, measurement and sampling activities. Several excursions are embedded to the program, including a one week field-trip.

AVAILABLE ECTS CREDITS

The program offers 30 ECTS credits + 2 ECTS credits (French as a Foreign Language course). Choose the number of credits required by your home institution credits (please note that at least 18 ECTS are compulsory).

FEEDBACKS FROM THE STUDENTS

Franco
(Rosario National University, Argentina)

"The program was excellent for me.

It was a big opportunity to take lessons in France. It helped me to improve my English, all the lessons and exams were in English and we all lived in an international residence with people from different countries with their own languages but with a common language that was English."

Yadan
(Nanjing Agricultural University, China)

"I think the program is successful and special. The international students had different knowledge backgrounds, and this program gave us a chance learning more beyond our own fields. Besides, this program combines us together, and we are just like an international family."

Study in France

The “Grandes Ecoles” are unique to France. They were created in the late 18th century in order to offer outstanding scientific education to the country’s future engineers. UniLaSalle, founded in 1854, belongs to this tradition. The associate professors involved in the program belong to a multi-disciplinary research group named AGHYLE. They look at how the water elements are influenced by biogeochemical interactions between rock, soil and plants. These studies will contribute to a better understanding of soil/water pollution as well as its remediation. Studying on our campus will not only give you access to excellence in education; you will also have the opportunity to live in the country that invented “savoir-vivre”, the art of living well. The Hauts-de-France region, home of UniLaSalle, is well known for its beautiful villages and its inspiring gothic cathedrals.
